

Student Feedback – Survey 2015/16.

We recently sent our survey to 20 Neuroimaging for Research MSc graduates and 20 others who have sat short courses with the Edinburgh Imaging Academy. We received 15 responses = 37%.

We were delighted that 87% of respondents felt that their online distance learning qualification, had benefited them.

Whilst answers from the survey are shown in the following pages, we felt that it was appropriate to share the positive feedback we received, from those expanding their answers in detail:

“It was the first step for me in widening my perspective about clinical and theoretical aspects of psychiatry and psychoanalysis.”

“I believe it helped me get my radiology training post, and it was very useful in my early radiology training.”

“This qualification helped me gain my PhD position to study MRI brain imaging, and the knowledge I’ve learnt helps a lot.”

“I live in Japan, where ODL is rare, so it is a good topic to share my experience with others who may now be interested in online learning.”

“The local research project I did in my final year, allowed me to connect with a research group who I am still working with now”.

“It has been very useful in my daily practice because has broaden my view and perspective of psychiatry and psychoanalysis”.

1. Which award (and level) did you graduate with?

What environment do you currently primarily work in?

2. What environment do you currently primarily work in:
- Hospital / Health care delivery
 - University / academia
 - Other

3. What is your current employment?

4. How has your ODL qualification influenced your career development?

5. Has it benefited you in other ways?

6. Studying while you are working can be challenging – what helped you succeed?

- 6. Studying while you are working can be challenging – what helped you succeed?
- Carrying out additional reading
- Setting aside regular study times
- Being active in the discussion boards
- Liaising with your peers online
- Other

7. How did you hear about our programs?

8. Which country/continent do you reside?

