

ALEXANDER CARMICHAEL DATES AND PEOPLE

This file records all dated material written by or relating to Alexander Carmichael, both in the Carmichael Watson collection and beyond. It includes transcriptions (marked T) and letters (marked L). A 'T' before the date means that a transcription was made on this particular date. A '(T)' after a manuscript folio number signifies a transcription of original material, whether extant or not, apparently recorded on the date in question. Although almost all of the Skye material Carmichael sent to John Francis Campbell (JFC) is composed of transcripts, it is not clear how much of the corresponding material in the Carmichael Watson collection in Edinburgh University Library is in fact original.

It should be stressed – as will be seen throughout the index – that all through his collecting career Carmichael was to say the least somewhat lackadaisical about recording dates accurately, with days, months, years, and on one occasion an entire century being misplaced. It should also be noted that Carmichael habitually uses 'Faoilleach' for the month of February rather than January.

The index gives the reader an overview not only of what AC was doing, with whom, and where, on specific days, but also, if used in conjunction with the subject indices, should suggest how his interests changed during his collecting career. The CW number – for example, CW150 - represents an item in the Carmichael Watson collection. For citation purposes it should be prefixed GB 237 Coll-97 eg GB 237 Coll-97/CW150.

Colours have been used to identify Carmichael's field notebooks. It should be stressed that, especially with regard to his early years collecting in Uist, an item – especially a 'neat' item – written in a field notebook does not necessarily represent the original recording, and could well be written up from an earlier rendering.

My thanks to the librarians and archivists in Canna House, Glasgow University Library, Edinburgh University Library, the National Library of Scotland, the National Records of Scotland, the National Museums of Scotland, and Strathclyde University Archives who have been so obliging, accommodating, and patient with our requests. Our thanks also to Alasdair Carmichael for his generosity in allowing me access to family papers; as well as to Ray Burnett for his kind assistance.
