MSc Health Humanities and Arts

An innovative new Masters programme from the University of Edinburgh

The MSc Health Humanities and Arts is a new and innovative masters programme that explores health and wellbeing through the lens of arts and humanities practice and knowledge. It investigates how disciplines such as Film-making, Fine and Performance Art, Dance, Music, Philosophy and Law can offer new ways to re-conceptualise, research, and represent health, illness and disability. Arts and humanities play an increasing role in advancing human health and social wellbeing, this programme offers critical space to work in, and contribute to the expansion of, this exciting new area of research and practice. Check out our website to find out more, including how to apply.

The programme is cross-disciplinary and will feature courses from a range of disciplines—from Landscape and Wellbeing, to the Anthropology of Death, to The Philosophy of Well-Being to Mental Health and Crime.

Or are you interested in creatively exploring how insights from humanites and arts can contribute to tackling global health challenges?
