APPENDIX 1: Honours Core Period and Option Course Allocations

Links to important information on your studies
WELCOME!

Welcome to Honours study in English Literature. This handbook, and the Honours pages for Current Students on our website, provide the information you’ll need to navigate your way successfully through the later years of your studies with us, so do take the time to familiarise yourself with what’s here. If you still can’t find what you’re looking for, contact the English Literature office in the first instance.

The vast majority of Honours students in this department have been very successful at coming to terms with the challenges of third and fourth years, and we are confident that you will too. In these years we’ll be aiming to help you become confident, capable independent learners, and to aid you in developing and honing your critical and intellectual skills. So as you go on, you’ll find more and greater opportunities to set the agenda for yourself, culminating in the Dissertation work you may well be undertaking with us in your fourth year. By the time you leave Edinburgh, we hope you’ll be an acute critic and an alert thinker undaunted by the practical, professional, or academic challenges still in front of you.

If we’re to help make that happen, you’re going to have to play your part. You’ll need to prepare for your courses and classes fully and in good time. You’ll also be expected to participate properly in the collaborative work you’ll be undertaking in your Autonomous Learning Groups. You’ll need to make sure that you attend all your classes, that you contribute to class discussions, and that you tackle the coursework required of you with due attention. There’ll be a lot of independent reading for you to do, too. For our part, we will make sure that we deal with any questions or problems that you may have as promptly and as fully as possible.

Dr Andrew Taylor
Head of English Literature

Note for Single Honours Scottish Literature students:
In selecting courses in 3rd and 4th Years, Single Hons Scottish Literature students must include at least 6 courses (core or option) with Scottish content. Courses with a Scottish content are indicated with an asterisk (*). One of these choices must, however, be the Dissertation in 4th Year, which counts as being equivalent to 2 of these 6 courses and must therefore be on a Scottish topic.
Note for Combined Honours English and Scottish Literature students:
In selecting courses in 3rd and 4th Years, Combined Hons English and Scottish Literature students must include at least 4 courses with Scottish content. Courses with a Scottish content are indicated with an asterisk (*). Students are encouraged to undertake Dissertation work in Scottish Literature, in which case the Dissertation will count as two of the required courses with Scottish content.

The rules regarding the weighting between the two sides of the degree and the number of Critical Practice courses which English Literature and History students OR English Literature and Classics students can take are slightly more definite than for some of the other combined honours programmes.

So, the pattern over the two Honours years is:

- COMBINED HONOURS ENGLISH LITERATURE AND A MODERN EUROPEAN LANGUAGE
- COMBINED HONOURS SCOTTISH LITERATURE AND A MODERN EUROPEAN LANGUAGE

Third Year

During the third year abroad students will be required to work on an independent English Literature Long Essay project, which will be submitted in September when they return to the fourth year of the degree in Edinburgh. This Long Essay will count for 40 credits of their third year work, the remaining 80 credits being assigned to the language. It will be assessed during year four and the mark will appear on the final degree transcript.

Fourth Year

During fourth year students will take courses amounting to 60 credits in English Literature and 60 credits in their language subject.

The English or Scottish Literature courses will consist of:

Notes for Students whose degree includes Scottish Literature:

During their 3rd Year spent abroad, Combined Hons Scottish Literature and a Modern European Language students should write their Long Essay on an appropriate topic.
In selecting courses to take on their return for their 4th Year, Combined Hons Scottish Literature and a Modern European Language students must select Literature option courses with Scottish content, a list of which will be made available when courses are being selected towards the end of Semester 2 of their 3rd Year. Courses with a Scottish content will be indicated with an asterisk (*).
HONOURS CORE PERIOD AND OPTION COURSES

CORE PERIOD COURSES

A core period course in each semester of your third and fourth year is compulsory for Single Honours students. In exceptional circumstances, Combined Honours students may also be allowed to take a Core Period course if there are particularly strong reasons for doing so.

Core Period courses are grouped by literary historical period, to ensure that you get to study a range of literature from the medieval era to the present day. The period groupings work as follows:

Semester 1, 3rd year: Medieval to Renaissance
Semester 2, 3rd year: Renaissance to Romanticism
Semester 1, 4th year: Romanticism to Modernism
Semester 2, 4th year: Modernism to Contemporary

Within each period, the courses on offer will focus on genres or kinds of literature, particular topics or issues, or specific literary and cultural practices. Not all of them will ask you to engage in primarily historicist accounts of the literature studied.

OPTION COURSES

As well as Core Period Courses, Single Honours students will take an Option Course each semester. Combined Honours students will be required to choose a course for each semester of their Honours years from the list of available Option Courses.

Option courses offer you the chance to study groups of texts from the varying perspectives of genre, period, theme or topic, theoretical approach or methodology.

Links to handbooks with course descriptions of all Core Period and Option courses running each year (including seminar schedule and required reading) and also a list of days, times and locations of classes are available on our website at https://www.ed.ac.uk/literatures-languages-cultures/english-literature/undergraduate/current/honours/core-option-2018-2019
For fuller details, consult LEARN for the individual courses.

AUTONOMOUS LEARNING GROUPS

All Option and Core Period courses include a weekly autonomous learning hour in addition to the two-hour seminar.
Students will be divided into small groups which will meet weekly to discuss a topic suggested by the course tutor. Students will be asked to report back to the larger group.

Autonomous Learning Groups are absolutely integral to the structure of Honours in this department. These are groups of four or five students, set up by the course tutor, each of which is required to meet privately outwith the class, in order to discuss some assigned aspect of reading. Each ALG will have set questions to discuss or a prescribed task to tackle, so that they can bring to the class an agreed agenda or consideration. You might regard you ALG as a great opportunity to discuss with other students those parts of a text which you did not really understand. In this way, you are not alone in a seminar, and this should contribute directly to your confidence in speaking in class.

LEARN

Your Honours courses use Learn, the University’s supported virtual learning environment, in order to give you the essential and background information you will need to participate in seminars and undertake written assignments. Each course has a Learn section, which appears as a clickable link when you log on to MyEd. While different courses use Learn to various degrees, you will at the very least find Course Information here, and you will be required to submit an electronic copy of your essay via this interface.

ATTENDANCE

Students are required to be in attendance during term time, attend all classes (seminars, field-work, etc) as specified in their course programme, and to undertake all preparation and reading required for them. Failure to attend is a serious matter.

Advance notice of absence should be given to the course tutor, the course administrator (for third years Anne Mason and fourth years June Cahongo) and your Personal Tutor. Health certificates are required for absence due to sickness in excess of one week, and should be submitted to your Personal Tutor.

Attendance at seminars is recorded by the seminar leader at the start or end of class, so it is important to attend punctually. It is expected that students will attend all seminars and autonomous learning groups. Failure to attend without good reason will lead to a deduction of marks from the relevant course essay which counts as 30% of that course’s final assessment.

SPECIAL NOTE ON ATTENDANCE FOR STUDENTS ON A TIER 4 VISA

As a Tier 4 student, the University of Edinburgh is the sponsor of your UK visa. The University has a number of legal responsibilities, including monitoring your attendance on your programme and reporting to the Home Office where:

- you suspend your studies, transfer or withdraw from a course, or complete your studies significantly early;

- you fail to register/enrol at the start of your course or at the two additional registration sessions each year and there is no explanation;

- you are repeatedly absent or are absent for an extended period and are excluded from the programme due to non-attendance. This includes missing Tier 4 census points without due reason. The University must maintain a record of your attendance and the Home Office can ask to see this or request information about it at any time;

As a student with a Tier 4 visa sponsored by the University of Edinburgh, the terms of your visa require you to, (amongst others):

- Ensure you have a correct and valid visa for studying at the University of Edinburgh, which, if a Tier 4 visa, requires that it is a visa sponsored by the University of Edinburgh;

- Attend all of your University classes, lectures, tutorials, etc where required. This includes participating in the requirements of your course including submitting assignments, attending meetings with tutors and attending examinations. If you cannot attend due to illness, for example, you must inform your School. This includes attending Tier 4 Census sessions when required throughout the academic session.

- Make sure that your contact details, including your address and contact numbers are up to date in your student record.

- Make satisfactory progress on your chosen programme of studies.

- Observe the general conditions of a Tier 4 General student visa in the UK, including studying on the programme for which your visa was issued, not overstaying the validity of your visa and complying with the work restrictions of the visa.

Please note that any email relating to your Tier 4 sponsorship, including census dates and times will be sent to your University email address - you should therefore check this regularly.

Further details on the terms and conditions of your Tier 4 visa can be found in the “Downloads” section at www.ed.ac.uk/immigration

Information or advice about your Tier 4 immigration status can be obtained by contacting the International Student Advisory Service, located at the International Office, 33 Buccleuch Place, Edinburgh EH8 9JS

HONOURS CORE PERIOD AND OPTION COURSE STATEMENT OF ASSESSMENT

BASIS FOR ASSESSMENT

Core Period course (20 credits):
- coursework - 30% of final mark
- mark for class participation – 10% of final mark
- 2-hour formal examination - 60% of final mark

Option course (20 credits):
- coursework - 30% of final mark
- mark for class participation – 10% of final mark
- take-home exam essay of no more than 3,000 words - 60% of final mark

COURSEWORK - ESSAYS

Coursework for Core Period and Option courses usually – but not always – takes the form of an essay. Essay titles are distributed to the class by the end of week 3, and essays are due in on the Monday of week 9 of Semester 1 and week 10 of Semester 2.

Where a rubric is provided, ten marks may be deducted for rubric violations.

The word limit for essays is 2,500 including quotations and footnotes. If your essay falls substantially short of the word length required, it is unlikely to be of the required standard, which will be reflected in the mark. Your essay may not receive a pass mark if it is less than half the required length. Excessively long essays will not be marked beyond that limit. This limit does not include the list of Works Cited.

2,500 words is a challenging word limit, since it forces compression and clarity. The discipline of editing to this length encourages concision and precision, and results in better essays. The challenge is well worth while since it teaches a skill valuable long after finals are over.

Full details on the presentation and layout of essays are included in the English Literature Writing Guide, which can be downloaded from the website. See link from: https://www.ed.ac.uk/literatures-languages-cultures/english-literature/undergraduate/current/handbooks

DEADLINES FOR COURSEWORK SUBMISSION

In Semester 1 Week 8 is set aside as "Essay Completion Week" for course essays. In Semester 2 this is Week 9.
SEMESTER 1

The final deadline for essay submission for both Core Period and Option courses in Semester 1 is

2 p.m. on Monday 12 November 2018 (Week 9)

However, in the interests of good time-management, Single Honours students are strongly advised to submit the essay for one of their courses before 2 p.m. on Thursday of Week 8.

SEMESTER 2

The final deadline for essay submission for both Core Period and Option courses in Semester 2 is

2 p.m. on the Monday 18 March 2019 (Week 10)

However, in the interests of good time-management, Single Honours students are strongly advised to submit the essay for one of their courses before 2 p.m. on Thursday of Week 9.

HOW TO SUBMIT ESSAYS

With the exception of 2-hour examinations, all assessed work should be completed using MS Word and a clearly readable type face like the standard Times New Roman font size 12.

- Your work should be double-spaced.
- The essay, including title page with essay topic, the main body of the essay and the list of Works Cited, must be saved as a single document, with a page break inserted between each element.
- Pages should be numbered.
- A word count, including the main body of the essay, all notes and quotations but excluding your Works Cited list, should be added to the title page.
- Please ensure that the file contains only the essay you are submitting, and that it is clearly identified during upload according to the format given below. A filename such as `<YourExamNumber>-<AbbreviatedCourseName>-Essay.doc` would be appropriate.

Essays should be submitted electronically by the deadline set for the essay. For this purpose, a Turnitin drop-box will set up on LEARN for the course, to which you should upload your essay. See below for further instructions.

Please note: once submitted, your essay will be scanned by software which generates an ‘originality report’, to help you and your tutors ensure that you have referenced your sources correctly.
When you submit your assignment you MUST:

- Include your name and Exam Number in the ‘Submission title’ field, which you are asked to complete as you upload your essay to Turnitin. The preferred format is <YourName>-<YourExamNumber>-EssayTitle e.g. JaneSmith-B012345-HamletEssay (It is fine to abbreviate a long essay title.)

See illustration below for example:

Without your name and exam number, your work might not be passed on quickly to your course organiser and feedback may be delayed.

Coursework assessment and feedback

Feedback and marks will normally be provided within 15 working days of submission. It is important to note that the initial marks provided on LEARN in Grademark are provisional.
and are subject to moderation, the application of penalties for lateness and non-attendance and final confirmation at the Exam Board.

EXTENSIONS ON COURSE WORK ESSAYS

If you are seriously unwell or suffering serious personal difficulties and unable to finish your course essay by the deadline after which late penalties are applied, you must apply for an extension in advance of the deadline. You should contact the relevant course administrator in the first instance by completing the extension request form on this link: https://www.ed.ac.uk/literatures-languages-cultures/current-students/extension-request

Extensions of longer than 7 days are not permitted. If you are unable to submit work within the extended deadline, it is vital you contact your Personal Tutor immediately with a view to completing a Special Circumstance form. For more details see the following link: http://www.ed.ac.uk/academic-services/students/assessment/special-circumstances/procedure

PENALTIES FOR LATE SUBMISSION OF COURSEWORK ESSAYS

It is University policy to penalise late work. Please note that late submission is penalised not because it causes members of staff any extra work (generally speaking, it does not), but in the interests of fairness to those students, the vast majority, who work hard to get their work finished on time. The student who complains about being penalised for their essay being one hour late is complaining at not being given an extra hour to complete their essay that other students did not have: that is, they are complaining about not being privileged over their classmates by the department.

You must submit your work in advance of the deadline. Penalties are exacted for late submission using the following scale:

ASSESSMENT OF CLASS PARTICIPATION

The award of an assessment mark for class participation is designed to recognise the significant role that active engagement with learning plays in student progress at Honours level, especially with regard to the programme’s use of Autonomous Learning Groups at this point in the degree. You should already be familiar with participation assessment from your pre-Honours courses, and the criteria employed there are very similar to those at Honours.

Four basic criteria are used in assessing the students’ tutorial contribution: (i) general preparation for seminars; (ii) participation in class discussion; (iii) fulfilment of specific tasks assigned by the tutor; and (iv) responsiveness to others in the group.

These categories can be defined in the following ways.

General Preparation: Students are expected to prepare for tutorials by reading set texts and accompanying materials, and by thinking about any questions/issues on which they have been specifically asked to focus. Particularly thorough and detailed preparation, or evidence of independent work beyond the prescribed activities, would merit a mark significantly over the median.

Participation in Discussion: Participation in discussion is an essential element in tutorial performance. Students should be rewarded above the median mark for making relevant contributions to discussion, both independently and in response to tutors’ questions. It is not simply a question of who speaks the most or the loudest: the quality and relevance of your contributions are what is being assessed.

Fulfilment of Specific Tasks: Students are expected to undertake individual and group tasks as part of their contribution to the activities of the tutorial, such as preparing class presentations or undertaking directed research into specific questions. This work takes place in the Autonomous Learning Groups attached to each course, and the outcomes of this autonomous work will be assessed. Credit is given for thorough and well-organised work in this area; initiative will also be rewarded.

Responsiveness: Attention to the contributions of fellow participants is a crucial element in effective tutorial discussion. Students will be expected to concentrate during discussions, and to show evidence in their contributions of listening to and interacting with other members of the group.

The work of the Autonomous Learning Groups for final year students will also be assessed. Each ALG will be awarded a mark by the tutor for the work they prepare for class (written reports, organised discussions, formal presentations, etc.), and individual members’ marks will be determined on the basis of their colleagues’ perception of their contribution to that group. Towards the end of the course, you will be asked to give a weighting for the contribution of each of the other members of your group, splitting the 100% weighting between them. The total percentage awarded to each person by the group as a whole will be used as a modifier for the mark awarded.

For example: in an ALG of five people, if each person is thought by everyone to have contributed more or less equally (i.e. if everyone awards the other four people 25% each), each person will receive 100% of the mark awarded by the tutor. If, however, one person frequently fails to attend without good reason and another does lots of extra excellent work to help the group keep up, it might be that the former gains only 85% of the overall mark and the latter 115% while the three others, who all contributed equally, get 100% each (so, for an overall mark of 68 awarded by the tutor for that group, the individual marks will be 78, 68, 68, 68, 58). The percentage scores awarded for peer assessment will be monitored for anomalies by the tutor in case of any problems arising about how they have been derived.

For final year students, half of the class assessment mark is awarded directly by the tutor for participation during the seminar, and half will be awarded by the tutor and modified by peer assessment for the work carried out in Autonomous Learning Groups. For third year students, and those visiting students taking third year courses, the class assessment mark will be wholly awarded by the tutor.

Final year students please note: providing peer assessment is part of the assessment structure of your course, and the non-completion of this assessment by the deadline set will be treated in the same manner as the non-submission of an essay. Any student who does not complete the WebPA task as required will be awarded zero for the ALG element of the Class Participation assessment.

FINAL ASSESSMENT – EXAM ESSAYS

THIRD YEAR

Semester 1 Option course exam essay questions will be released at 9am on Friday 5 April 2019, and the exam essay will be due by 2pm on Friday 26 April 2019.

Semester 2 Option course exam essay questions will be released at 9am on Friday, 5 April 2019, and the exam essay will be due by 2pm on Friday 10 May 2019.

FOURTH YEAR

Semester 1 Option course exam essay questions will be released at 9am on Friday 30 November 2018, and the exam essay will be due by 2pm on Thursday 20 December 2018.

Semester 2 Option course exam essay questions will be released at 9am on Saturday 6 April 2019, and the exam essay will be due by 2pm on Monday 29 April 2019.

ALL HONOURS STUDENTS

An exam essay is designed to allow you to demonstrate your knowledge of particular texts and issues from your course as well as of the broad range of texts and topics covered. As you will be writing this essay with access to your notes, books and online resources, it is expected that it will be properly presented and referenced in line with the requirements set out in the English Literature Writing Guide (available on link from:
The expectation is that within the period allowed, an exam essay is at most a five-day task, and is not expected to take up all the time you may have available in the allotted period.

Exam essay questions are released in the Course Content folder of a course’s LEARN section. It is your responsibility to ensure that you can access LEARN on the days when questions are released.

A rubric and full instructions will accompany the questions. Please read these carefully, as rubric violations may be subject to a penalty of ten marks. Also note that an exam essay may not receive a pass mark if it is less than half the required length.

Students are strongly urged not to leave final completion of their essays until the last minute.

One electronic copy should be submitted to Turnitin via LEARN for the course by the deadline set. This will work in the same way as with the course essays except that the exam-essay should be anonymous.

When you submit your exam essay you MUST:

- Identify your exam essay on the title page, which should mention course and essay topic, only by your Exam Number (to be found on your student card) NOT by your Name.
- Include your Exam Number (but NOT your Name) in the ‘Submission title’ field which you are asked to complete as you upload your essay to Turnitin. The preferred format is `<YourExamNumber>-EssayTitle` e.g. B012345-HamletEssay (It is fine to abbreviate a long essay title.)
- Please make sure that your name does NOT appear anywhere on the exam-essay itself, so that the electronic copy can be marked anonymously.

For further information on the font, spacing, word count and format in which to submit your essay please refer to page 13 of this handbook.

FINAL ASSESSMENT – EXAM ESSAYS – LATE SUBMISSION

As this exercise is a Degree Examination, there is no procedure for the granting of extensions. Your work must be submitted by the due date. Late submissions count as defaulting on a Degree Examination, and will normally be marked as zero.

If you are unwell or experience acute personal difficulties whilst undertaking the assignment, you should contact your Personal Tutor, School Student Support Officers and the Chairman of the Board of Examiners as a matter of urgency. You should also obtain a medical certificate covering the relevant part of the assessment period as soon as possible. Your Personal Tutor or the Student Support Officers will be able to advise you whether you should make use of the University’s Special Circumstances provision, and how to do so.

Computer problems are in no circumstances an acceptable reason for delayed or incomplete submission.

FINAL ASSESSMENT – EXAMS

Students take a 2-hour formal examination for each of their Core Period Courses in third and fourth years.

A rubric and full instructions will accompany the questions. Please read these carefully, as rubric violations may be subject to a penalty of ten marks.

Past examination papers are available for consultation in the University library. Copies of English Literature papers can also be accessed via Edinburgh University Exam Papers Online. In the case of new courses, a sample paper will be given to students during the course.

THIRD YEAR

Exams for all Core Period Courses will take place during the Final Assessment period (22 April to 24 May 2019). Examination times and venues will be posted on the Student Administration website: http://www.ed.ac.uk/student-administration/exams

FOURTH YEAR

Exams for 4th Year Semester 1 and Semester 2 Core Period Courses are taken during the End of Year Examination period (22 April to 24 May 2019). Examination times and venues will be posted on the Student Administration website: http://www.ed.ac.uk/student-administration/exams

FINAL ASSESSMENT – EXAMS – MISSED AND INCOMPLETE

If you miss an exam, or are unable to complete it, you should contact your Personal Tutor, School Student Support Officers and the Chairman of the Board of Examiners as a matter of urgency. You should also obtain a medical certificate covering the relevant part of the assessment period as soon as possible. Your Personal Tutor, Visiting Student Office or the Student Support Officers will be able to advise you whether you should make use of the University’s Special Circumstances provision, and how to do so.
RESITS

In accordance with the Taught Assessment Regulations, Honours students are entitled to one assessment attempt for courses at SCQF level 9 to 12 (non-attendance or non-submission is considered an assessment attempt). This means no resits are permitted unless Special Circumstances are upheld.

MODERATION

In accordance with QAA expectations, as specified in Chapter B6 of the UK Quality Code for Higher Education, the primary purpose of moderation is to ensure that assessment criteria are being applied fairly and consistently and that there is a shared understanding of the academic standards that students are expected to achieve. Moderation also provides an opportunity to assure the quality of feedback provided to students on their assessed work, in terms of its sufficiency, clarity, helpfulness and timeliness, and to comment on aspects related to the design and implementation of the assessment that may feed into future enhancements of the assessment.

At Honours level, all forms of assessment are moderated in one or more ways.

1. All fourth-year dissertations are double-marked; if the two markers cannot reach agreement, the dissertation goes to a third marker who can assign a final mark within the boundaries set by the first two markers.

Core Period and Option exams, exam essays, and Critical Practice assessments are sample second marked.

The course organisers of team-taught Core Period courses have responsibility for the oversight of exam marking for the entire course to ensure consistency of marking and feedback.

Moderators/second markers review every piece of feedback produced by the first marker and the overall mark distribution for their batch to ensure that assessments have been marked in line with the marking scale, that the range of available marks is used appropriately, that the feedback properly explains the grade awarded, and that all problematic scripts (including fail marks, rubric infringements, etc.) have been carefully considered.

2. Critical Practice Course Organisers have overall responsibility for moderation of CP courses, the Dissertation Organiser has overall responsibility for moderation of the Dissertation, while third and fourth-year Exam Clerks have overall responsibility for moderation of Core Period and Option courses. This means moderators/second markers can refer individual problematic scripts or script runs to the relevant Course Organiser/Exam Clerk. These higher-level moderators also have oversight of overall mark distributions for all forms of assessment in the courses they are responsible for (this includes term essays and participation for Core Period/Option courses).

Moderators at all levels have the power either to confirm or to adjust marks and feedback in consultation with the original markers before final confirmation at the Exam Board.

NB Only moderators can determine the existence of grounds for mark adjustment, and all decisions confirmed by the Exam Board are final.

3. Exam Boards and External Examiners oversee the entire marking and moderation process.

PROGRESSION

For information on requirements for progression into the final year of your degree please refer to the Degree Programme Table for your specific degree: see, for example, links to degrees within the School of Literatures, Languages and Cultures at:
http://www.drps.ed.ac.uk/18-19/dpt/drps_llc.htm

If you are unable to meet all of the requirements for progression in your degree programme, you should contact the Student Support Office.
FEEDBACK

The marks you receive for your work should always be understood in the light of the feedback that you will receive at the same time, and both marks and feedback should be read in the light of the Grade Descriptors published in the English Literature Writing Guide.

THE IMPORTANCE OF FEEDBACK

Learning is a process of communication between students and teachers, and feedback is essential to that process. It helps you identify your strengths and weaknesses, zero in on problem areas, and devise strategies to improve your performance. It helps you recognise variability and trends in your own performance, and where you stand in regard to your peers. Feedback is not an end in itself, but a tool for advancing the more important goal of learning.

WHAT FORMS DOES IT TAKE?

It is important to recognise the variable forms that feedback takes. There is more to it than just comments on individual pieces of work.

- When we think of feedback, we usually think first of written comments on specific essays, dissertations and sometimes on exams. Such feedback aims to give you some explanation of the mark you received, pointing out the main strengths and weaknesses, and suggesting what would have improved the performance. As already suggested, such feedback tells you something about that particular performance, but also about your general academic abilities.

- It is important to remember that marks are themselves a form of feedback, providing a ranking of your performance in relation to others doing the same piece of assessment, and in relation to general standards of assessment performance. Grade descriptors are intended to give a guide to how assessment performance is judged. They provide a basic context for reading and understanding the meaning of a mark.

- Some courses provide opportunities to submit non-assessed work, often as a preparation for work that will be assessed later. Feedback on non-assessed work can be just as vital as feedback on assessed work, so you should make the most of these opportunities.

- Particularly at honours level, supervision of dissertations and research projects involves considerable feedback along the way to producing the piece of work that will be assessed. In cases like this there is feedback both before and after the assessment.
• One of the reasons you are encouraged to participate actively in discussions in seminars and workshops is that this is one of the most fruitful opportunities for feedback, for trying out ideas, exploring your understanding of material, and raising questions. It is for this reason that our courses sometimes attach a mark to tutorial performance; on the other hand, when tutorial performance is not assessed, this provides an ideal environment to gain feedback without the pressure of formal assessment. Make the most of it.

HOW CAN STUDENTS GET THE MOST OUT OF FEEDBACK?

First off, as suggested above, you should appreciate the various forms that feedback takes. Beyond that, here are some suggestions:

• Learn more about study and assessment skills. There is a lot of helpful literature and guidance available. Two places to start are:
  (1) The Library. Books on ‘study skills’ are generally found under the Library of Congress call numbers LB2395. You can always ask a librarian for guidance.
  (2) The Institute for Academic Development – Study development for undergraduates: https://www.ed.ac.uk/institute-academic-development/undergraduate.

• Try to consider the various forms of feedback you receive not as isolated events, but as part of an overall pattern of performance, identifying general areas of strength and weakness. This should become clearer the more you are assessed and the more feedback you receive as you progress through your programme. If you detect a consistent area where you need to improve, seek advice from tutors and course conveners about what to do.

• In the first instance, when trying to understand a mark and any associated comments, read these in the context of School marking descriptors. Marking descriptors are necessarily general, but may help put the feedback you’ve received in a wider context.

• If you know that a classmate has done particularly well, you might ask to read their essays. They may say no, but they might also be flattered. Doing this will help you get a realistic picture of what good coursework looks like, what can be achieved, and what kinds of performance your own work is being evaluated in relation to.

• If you have questions about a mark and associated comments on coursework, you are always entitled to seek clarification from the marker. For Core Period and Option essays, you should approach the course organiser. For other pieces of Honours work, you should approach the Undergraduate Director in the first instance.
ENGLISH LITERATURE POLICIES ON ASSESSMENT FEEDBACK

Assessment in English Literature Honours operates according to the following principles:

- Feedback on coursework is provided in written form online. You may also ask your tutor or course organiser for additional comment and advice, where appropriate.

- There is a ‘fifteen working day’ turn-around time expected for mid-semester coursework assessment. If this turn-around time is not being met, you should bring this to the attention of the Undergraduate Director.

Please note: this turn-around time does not apply with terminal assessments for Honours courses. We will endeavour to return feedback as quickly as possible, and certainly before the next round of assessment, but due to the need for double marking, moderating and/or external scrutiny, this is unlikely to occur within fifteen working days.

- The department is required to retain honours exam scripts as a record of exam performance, and cannot return these to students. You may, however, ask to see your scripts if you wish to do so. Honours students will, in any case, receive written feedback on their sit-down exams.
DEGREE AWARDS AND CLASSIFICATION

Degree classification is calculated from marks obtained for the 240 credits achieved in Years 3 and 4. One unit of assessment is allocated to every 20 credits. The Degree Programme Table for your degree (see http://www.drps.ed.ac.uk/18-19/dpt/drps_llc.htm for degrees within the School of LLC) sets out the twelve units of assessment on which the classification of your degree will be based. Papers that acquire a weighting of 40 credits for the purposes of degree classification, such as Year 4 dissertations, will be listed twice.

In awarding degrees, the department strictly adheres to the College’s Taught Assessment Regulations. Degrees are classified on the basis of the Extended Common Marking Scheme:

https://www.ed.ac.uk/student-administration/exams/regulations/common-marking-scheme

If the overall degree mark results in a borderline grade, we proceed as follows:

‘Borderline marks are defined as marks from two percentage points below the class or grade boundary up to the boundary itself, e.g. 58.00% to 59.99% for an undergraduate 2.1 classification or 38.00% to 39.99% for a pass.’

In these cases, we are required to assess the ‘profile’ of the student’s marks. If the candidate has achieved 50% or more of their course marks in the higher category then they are eligible for the higher award.

Students should also be aware that all of our marking and examining is overseen by four External Examiners who are entirely independent of the University: they sample our marking and assessment throughout the year and during the Exam Boards.

APPEALS / COMPLAINTS

In line with University policy, students are permitted to appeal for a decision made by a Board of Examiners to be reconsidered. Details of how to undertake this process are available here:

https://www.ed.ac.uk/students/academic-life/curriculum/academic-appeals

The process for complaining about an aspect of your teaching or assessment is set out here:

https://www.ed.ac.uk/university-secretary-group/complaint-handling-procedure
PLAGIARISM AND ACADEMIC MISCONDUCT

Plagiarism is the use of material taken from another writer’s work without proper acknowledgement, presenting it as if it were your own. While it is perfectly proper in academic study to make use of another person’s ideas, to do so under the pretence that they are your own is deceitful. Plagiarism, whether in coursework or examinations, is always taken extremely seriously within the university as it is a form of cheating. Work found to be plagiarised may be penalised, assessed at zero, or not accepted, and in serious cases may lead to disciplinary action being initiated.

Work undertaken for our courses is designed to help you develop your knowledge and understanding, and your own powers of analysis and argument. Essays, exams and exam essays assess these skills. Plagiarism therefore undermines the whole purpose of the academic study of literature. For all work for the department’s courses, it is important to be aware of, and to acknowledge the sources of arguments and words. This applies to material drawn from critical books and lectures, but also from the work of other students (including tutorial or seminar discussions) and from the internet and other electronic sources. Tutors will check web-based material, as well as other sources, where they have reason to suspect that the writing a student submits does not represent their own ideas, words and arguments.

While deliberate plagiarism involves an intention to deceive and is easy to avoid, it is possible to fall unawares into practices which could be mistaken for plagiarism if you are not familiar with the proper means of using and acknowledging material from other writers. Inadequate referencing and inappropriate use of others’ material could inadvertently lay you open to charges of plagiarism. You should also be aware that the resubmission of previously submitted work is classed as misconduct, just like plagiarism, and will be treated as such. You can refer to work that you’ve previously submitted in a new submission, but you need to cite clearly this pre-existing material in your new submission.

Since different subjects involve different uses of material, and may have different conventions about how it should be acknowledged, it is important that in each of their subjects students consult departmental guidelines about the purpose and presentation of written work in that discipline.

Aside from plagiarism, you must also avoid all other forms of academic misconduct. These include collusion, the unauthorised and unattributed collaboration of students in a piece of assessed work; falsification, the attempt to present fictitious or distorted data, evidence, references, citations, or experimental results, and/or to knowingly make use of such material; cheating, the attempt to obtain or to give assistance in an examination or an assessment without due acknowledgement. This includes submitting work which is not one’s own; deceit, the use of dishonesty to gain an advantage; and personation, the assumption of the identity of another person with intent to deceive or gain unfair advantage.
ASSESSMENT INFORMATION FOR VISITING STUDENTS ON HONOURS CORE AND/OR OPTION COURSES

FULL YEAR VISITING STUDENTS

Students who are here for the whole year will take their Core Period and/or Option courses under the same arrangements as home students.

SEMESTER 1 ONLY VISITING STUDENTS

BASIS OF ASSESSMENT for Core Period or Option course (20 credits):
• coursework essay of 2,500 words - 30% of final mark
• mark for class participation – 10% of final mark
• take-home exam essay of no more than 3,000 words - 60% of final mark

For each Core Period or Option course in English Literature a Visiting Student here for Semester One only will write an exam essay of not more than 3,000 words either from the existing list of coursework essay questions or by agreeing another question with their tutor. The essay should engage with ideas from the course as a whole, and should include material distinct from the coursework essay.

Each exam essay should be submitted by the deadline set during the first-semester exam period. The deadline for 2018 is: before 2 pm on Friday 14 December 2018

Please ensure that you do not make irrevocable arrangements to return home until you are completely sure you know when you will be required to submit your exam essays.

One electronic copy of each exam essay should be submitted via Turnitin on Learn in the same manner as for course essays, except that the exam-essay should be anonymous.

When you submit your assignment you MUST:
• Include only your Exam Number (NOT your Name) in the ‘Submission title’ field which you are asked to complete as you upload your essay to Turnitin. The preferred format is <YourExamNumber>-EssayTitle e.g. B012345-HamletEssay (It is fine to abbreviate a long essay title.)
• Please make sure that your name does NOT appear anywhere on the exam-essay itself, so that the electronic copy can be marked anonymously.

SEMESTER 2 ONLY VISITING STUDENTS (THIRD YEAR ONLY)

Students who are here for Semester 2 only will take their Core Period and/or Option courses under the same arrangements as home students.
What Next after University? – Support from your University Careers Service

Honours years are an excellent time to start researching your future after graduation, if you haven’t already done so.

Whatever your ideas – work, further study, gap year, volunteering, gaining experience … whatever stage you’re at – clued up or clueless, and anything in between … the Careers Service can support you in your journey from university to your future after graduation. We work with students and graduates from day 1, to 2 years after graduation.

We offer information, advice and guidance on:
- Career direction
- Gaining experience
- Job hunting
- CVs, applications and interviews
- Further study
- … and more

via our website, careers information centre, individual discussion with a careers adviser, programme of talks and events, and more.
Browse our website www.ed.ac.uk/careers for further information on all of our services, or call in and see us on the 3rd floor of the Main Library Building.
And specifically for English lit students - your own careers blog https://englitcareersblog.wordpress.com/ - regular postings relevant to English lit students, to inform and inspire.

Also check out your dedicated English Literature careers pages https://www.ed.ac.uk/literatures-languages-cultures/english-literature/undergraduate/current/careers-advice to discover:
- What recent English Literature graduates have gone on to do
- Your options with an English Literature degree
- After English – a website dedicated to helping English Literature graduates plan for their future after graduation

Finally – look out for notices and emails about Careers Service activity in English Literature for the current session including regular bookable appointments for English Literature students only, and sessions of particular interest to English lit students.

We look forward to working with you on your plans for your future after graduation.
APPENDIX 1

HONOURS CORE PERIOD AND OPTION COURSE ALLOCATIONS

The allocation of places on our Core Period and Option Honours courses is somewhat complex, and may perhaps be opaque to you. We hope that the following explanation provides more transparency about this process and reassurance about its equity.

CONTEXT
The department of English Literature has the single largest number of undergraduate students in the College of Humanities and Social Sciences (CHSS). We annually need to find places for 400 honours students, taking either two or four Core Period or Option courses with us, out of a range of around 85 choices: this equates to 1200 course places, to be divided as equally as possible for each year group. This is by far the most flexible range of choice in the College.

The department is also committed to retaining small group teaching: you can be sure that there will not be more than 15 students in our Honours seminars. As we are also required to reserve 3 spaces in each seminar for Visiting Students (in 3rd year) and for Taught Masters Students (in 4th year), this means that, in practice, there are 12 places for our home students. However, from experience we are aware that some courses are more popular than others and where possible we offer a popular course twice in a semester to accommodate student demand.

In order to maintain these kinds of flexibility, the Department relies upon some reciprocal flexibility on the part of its students: for this reason, we operate a system of preferences.

PROCESS
Each year the Head of English Literature and the Director of Undergraduate Studies have to plan which courses will be available in which semester, in order to a) accommodate student needs and b) balance staff workloads (taking into account the fact that some members of staff will be working on research projects rather than teaching for some or all of the semester).

Our administrative staff then produce the online Honours Application forms which you fill in. We ask you to indicate FOUR preferences in each of the Core Period/Option courses which are appropriate to your Degree Programme. These are ranked 1, 2, 3, 4, with the assumption being that 1 = first choice and 4 = fourth.

In order to guide you, and to help us meet your preferences, we indicate which courses are likely to be in high demand by annotating such courses accordingly on the Honours
Application form. While you will have a good chance of gaining a place on a high demand course if you make it your first preference, you will be unlikely to gain a place on such a course if you make it your second or subsequent preference.

On receipt of the forms, our administrative staff enter the raw data into our Honours database. This allows staff to see where student demand is highest (and, of course, lowest). At this point, actual demand may well be at odds with what we had anticipated and we adapt our provision accordingly, where possible. However, the raw data in itself does not allow us to see how the general spread of preferences relates to an individual student’s specific choices. To ensure that as many as possible of you gain entry into your first or second preference in any given course/semester over the year, our administrative staff check each individual application.

By so doing, we are able to ensure that there is general equity across the cohort; that is, while not everyone will always get all of their first or second choices, we can guarantee that no-one will be assigned to all their fourth choices.

Arguably, a time-saving alternative would be for us to operate a first-come, first-served policy, but this would actually disadvantage more students more often than our current policy, and would not allow us to respond flexibly to fluctuations in student demand. Other systems might allow us to please some students all of the time, but only at the cost of displeasing as many to the same extent. Our current approach allows us to please all students some of the time, which we feel is a fairer outcome.

SWAP shop

While both administrative and academic staff spend a great deal of time trying to sort out what’s best for everybody, in addition we allow for further flexibility by offering a ‘Swap Shop’.

Once the allocations have been made, students are informed of the outcomes. At this point, any student who has been allocated a course they would prefer not to take, can sign up in the hope that a space may become free in their preferred option.

The Swap shop is NOT operated on a first-come, first-served basis. The desired ‘swap’ can only be accommodated if another student wishes to move out of the course you would like to move into.

FINAL OPPORTUNITY FOR CHANGE

From experience we are aware that, despite all the work that goes into the process described above, for various reasons there can be some last minute changes at the beginning of the Academic Year.

If you are still keen to obtain a place on a preferred course, you should register your interest with the departmental administrators. The administrators will maintain a waiting list and contact applicants should a place become available.
DISCLAIMER: Please note that information in this handbook may change during the course of the academic year. If this happens, you will be notified of the changes by email.
School of Literatures, Languages and Cultures: Links to important information

This section is designed to provide details of common policies which will be important throughout your studies. Some apply across the university, while others are specific to the School of Literatures, Languages and Cultures (LLC). Students are expected to familiarise themselves with these policies. More information on the statements below can be found by following the relevant links.

If you require this document, or any of the internal University of Edinburgh online resources mentioned in this document, in an alternative format, please contact the course administrators mentioned on page 3 of this Handbook.

Marking Scheme

http://edin.ac/1pq2CXg

An explanation of the marks and grades applied to coursework and exams.

Plagiarism and Academic Misconduct

http://edin.ac/2cBDopr
http://edin.ac/2bl695P

Plagiarism is taken very seriously and incurs penalties. Follow the links provided to make sure you know what plagiarism is and how to avoid it.

Coursework submission

http://edin.ac/161lzRl

Formal assignments must normally be submitted electronically through the course Learn area. Check your assessment instructions for details. All electronic submissions will be reviewed by the plagiarism detection service Turnitin.

Extension requests for coursework submission

https://edin.ac/2NaUJms

You can apply for an extension of up to 7 days by submitting a request before the assignment is due. Please note that penalties for late submission will be applied unless an extension request has been approved and this requirement applies to ALL students, including those who have an adjustment schedule.

Penalties for late coursework submission

http://edin.ac/1S73Hv7

Deductions for unauthorised late submission will be calculated as follows: 5 marks per calendar day for up to 7 days; zero awarded thereafter (Taught Assessment Regulation 28).

Coursework feedback

http://edin.ac/1S73Hv7

Feedback on in-course assessed work will be provided within 15 working days of submission, or in time to be of use in subsequent assessments within the course, whichever is sooner, but please note the following exceptions:

- This timescale does not apply to final in-course assessment, including exams.
- The University Christmas closure period is excluded from the 15 working day calculation.

(Taught Assessment Regulation 16)

Accessing marked coursework and feedback

http://edin.ac/2tmFxco

After a piece of coursework has been marked, you will be able to view it – along with the mark and all related feedback – in Learn. You will find the assessment in the same location that you submitted it.

Exam Diet Dates

http://edin.ac/1mtVGn9

You will find dates of forthcoming exam diets at the link here, as well as exam timetables once available. Please note that exam diets are scheduled centrally and the School is unable to influence this.
Past Exam Papers

You can look at exam papers from previous years at the link here.

http://edin.ac/1ogJkgn

Use of dictionaries in examinations

Please note that this is not permitted, except in a few specific cases where all students on a course are allowed to do so.

http://edin.ac/1oUMqMZ

Degree Progression Requirements

You will find full details of progression requirements in the Degree Programme Table for your degree. Please note that entry into Honours is normally by achievement of a mark of 50 or higher at the first attempt in all the compulsory second-year courses of your registered degree. There may be additional requirements for language students.

Counselling Service  https://edin.ac/2N33Wxb

The Counselling Service aim to support you to make the most of your student experience at the University of Edinburgh. They offer a wide range of support including instant access self-help resources, drop-in presentation workshops, short term counselling and consultation.

Emergency Contacts and Nightline  https://edin.ac/2N7FkDM

If you need assistance as a matter of urgency either during normal working hours (Monday-Friday, 9a.m. to 5p.m.) or in the evening or at the weekend and you are uncertain who to contact, please consult the information available at the link above.

Peer support  https://edin.ac/2N5thXs

Peer Support in the context of the University means a student with more experience sharing their knowledge, skills, abilities and expertise with a new or less experienced student. Peer Support may focus around advancing your academic work, providing opportunities to socialise with other students within your School or offering additional support to ensure your wellbeing while at University. Edinburgh University Students’ Association (EUSA) and the University have been widely developing the Peer Support Project across the University since 2012.

Different forms of Peer Support are available throughout LLC; if you would like to become involved in a peer support scheme, please speak to your Course Organiser or Personal Tutor or contact EUSA for more information: peer.support@eusa.ed.ac.uk.

Student feedback and Staff-Student Liaison  http://edin.ac/2pkJuir

Students have various opportunities to provide feedback, both informally (e.g. by speaking to staff) and formally (e.g. through end-of-course questionnaires). Staff members at the University of Edinburgh work closely with student representatives. Edinburgh University Students’ Association (EUSA) coordinates student representation and provides training and support for student representatives across the University. Student representatives (‘Reps’) listen to you to identify areas for improvement, suggest solutions, and ensure that your views inform strategic decisions within the University, building a stronger academic community and improving your student life. Schools share students’ emails with their student representatives as a matter of course; any student wishing to opt out from this should inform the Course Secretary.
