Course Description

The course will introduce students to central ideas in the theory of virtue from the ancient, medieval, early modern and contemporary periods, illustrating the development of this area of moral philosophy, the various ways in which the concept of virtue has been interpreted, and the different views which have been held about its significance for ethics.

Teaching will consist of a weekly seminar (10.00-10.50 a.m. Tuesday: S37, 7 George Square), and a tutorial (11.10-12.00 Wednesday, 1.01 Dugald Stewart Building). A list of readings for tutorials will be published at the start of term.

Assessment

Assessment consists of a tutorial presentation (20%), and an final exam in the May exam period (80%). Each student will be asked to make a presentation in the course of the term, introducing a passage from the reading and raising questions for discussion. A written submission may be substituted for the presentation with the course organiser’s approval.

Students who have chosen to submit a coursework dissertation (5000 word essay) in this course should follow the usual procedure for coursework dissertations. They should consult the course organiser about their plans for the dissertation before the decision deadline (Monday 24th February).
