Job Description

Job Purpose

To contribute distinguished teaching, research, public impact, and leadership in a field of Psychology which fits well with the department's research profile, working closely with colleagues in Psychology and the School to contribute to the continuing development of Psychology as a centre of international excellence.

Research and teaching activities will be focussed in one of the following areas:

 1) Differential psychology;
 2) Human cognitive psychology;
 3) Social psychology (with expertise in quantitative and/or qualitative analysis), with the aim of further strengthening the department's world leading research profile in these areas.

Main Responsibilities

1.Take responsibility for design of course units and for their quality, and contribute generally to the development of teaching and enhancement of high-quality teaching in the subject area.
Contribute to the teaching objectives of Psychology and the School by applying knowledge derived from research to teaching, supervising, and assessing at all levels, including undergraduate courses and Masters programmes. Teaching duties may include the delivery of lectures and small group tutorials and the supervision of undergraduate and postgraduate projects and dissertations. This includes provision of high-quality assessment feedback in a timely fashion (Approx % of time 35%).

2.Provide advice and support to students. This may include acting as a Cohort Lead for a set of students (Approx. % of time 5%).

3.Contribute to the research work of Psychology, by pursuing a clearly independent research programme. This should complement existing areas of research excellence within the subject area. The research should be at an international level that leads to regular publication and presentation of results and to successful applications for external funding.   Recruit and supervise PhD students in the relevant area of research (Approx % of time 35%).

4.Represent the work of the University in the field locally, nationally, and internationally in relevant networks and/or in public activities (Approx % of time 5%).

5.Involve external partners in teaching through knowledge exchange, collaborative studentships, student projects, and by involving students in public engagement (Approx % of time 5%).

6.Contribute to subject area planning and undertake further leadership and administrative duties, as specified by the Head of School or Head of Subject Area (Approx % of time 15%).

Planning and Organising

- Assume responsibility for own time management.
- Plan own research, use of resources, including applications for external funding.
- Prepare, organise, deliver, and assess relevant undergraduate and postgraduate courses and meet all relevant deadlines. This includes providing training and guidance, where appropriate, for tutors on these courses.
- Supervise PhD students through timely and regular meetings.
- Organise activities associated with any administrative role carried out on behalf of the Subject Area or School.

Problem Solving

- Solve problems relating to own research, including seeking out appropriate external resources.
- Respond to student feedback on teaching and assessment through changes in course design and course content as appropriate.
- Develop appropriate responses to problems or issues that arise in respect of administrative roles.

Decision Making

- Decide on own work patterns and priorities, in consultation with key School contacts such as Head of Subject Area or Head of School as appropriate.
- Decide on an appropriate research strategy and on how best to implement this, including selecting appropriate means and output locations for publishing research findings and deciding on how best to seek out external funding.
- Decide on appropriate teaching material for courses at various levels and how best to present this material to students and how it is best assessed.
- Decide on the best way to deal with student queries, including deciding on when to approach other key School contacts for further support.

Key Contacts and Relationships

- UG and PG students.
- other teaching colleagues within the subject area.
- Head of Subject Area.
- Professional Services staff across the School.
- Other College/University representatives.
- Head of School.
- External contacts such as organisers of research conferences, representatives of learned societies or other professional organisations, representatives of research funding bodies.

Knowledge, Skills and Experience Needed for the role of Lecturer

The successful applicant should have:-

Essential

E1 Extensive experience of original research in an area of Psychology, supported by a relevant qualification (normally a PhD or equivalent; pending assumed complete maybe considered).

E2 A strong track record of first author and/or collaborative publications in high quality venues.

E3 Evidence of experience in teaching, indicative of commitment to and potential for excellence in undergraduate and postgraduate teaching.

The Department

Established in 1906, Psychology at Edinburgh was one of the first departments of psychology in the UK. We currently have around 45 academic staff, 30 research staff, and 70 PhD students. The department enjoys a world-wide reputation for its research, covering a range of topics from the psychology of language to individual differences. Edinburgh Psychology, together with neuroscience, psychiatry, and clinical psychology, is a research unit whose overall quality of research is ranked 2nd in the UK and combined quality/breadth is ranked 3rd in the UK as per REF 2021 standings.

We are home to world-class research groups in human cognitive neuroscience, individual differences, psychology of language, social psychology and developmental psychology. Psychology also houses the Alzheimer Scotland Dementia Research Centre, as well as The Koestler Parapsychology Unit which brings together a vibrant network of researchers engaged in exploring the ways in which data and digital technology are transforming our world.

We have excellent facilities for research and teaching, including a cognitive neuroscience facility with EEG/ ERP, NIRS, TMS, eye and motion-tracking technologies, a developmental facility with infant eye- tracking capabilities, a psychometric test library, and general computing and experimental research facilities. Staff have access to the Wellcome Trust Clinical Research Facility and the Scottish Brain Imaging Research Centre, as well as a large volunteer panel to assist the recruitment of normal adult subject samples. Students from around the world study Psychology at Edinburgh, with approx 35% of our students coming from outside the UK from over 40 different countries.

We have a well-established postgraduate programme, offering seven taught MSc programmes as well as PhD study. Undergraduate class sizes range from around 350 in first year (including a first year intake onto Psychology single and joint honours degree programmes of around 180 students), to more specialist third and fourth year classes of around 60-100 students. Small-group teaching is a feature throughout the curriculum, with students taught in groups of 6-15 by academic staff and postgraduate tutors. The Psychology student society, PsychSoc, runs a wide series of social and scientific events and also coordinates a PsychPALS scheme, in which first year students are mentored by older students.

Psychology's unique role as part of the School of Philosophy, Psychology, and Language Sciences has fostered rich teaching and research collaborations in cognitive science, moral psychology, and the psychology of language. We have links across the University with world-class researchers in related disciplines such as business studies, economics, sociology, neuroscience, neuroinformatics, and genetics. We have extensive national and international collaborative links in all of these disciplines.

The School

The School comprises Philosophy, Psychology, and Language Sciences (Linguistics and English Language. We offer a rich and diverse learning and research environment for our staff and students, with close links between our three subject areas, alongside other world-class research areas within the University and beyond.

All of the School's subjects rank top 15 in the UK and top 30 in the world (The THE World University Rankings 2018 by subject results). In all subject areas the School is recognised as world-leading, as shown in its high rankings across all areas in the THE ranking by subject of the latest Research Excellence Framework (REF 2021).

As part of the wider University of Edinburgh 2021 REF submission, PPLS submitted (either singularly, or in conjunction with other schools) to three, subject-based, units of assessment: UoA4 – Psychology, Psychiatry, and Neuroscience; UoA26 – Modern Languages and Linguistics; and UoA30 – Philosophy.

The breadth and quality of PPLS's submissions, when compared to other UK universities, has resulted in:

Psychology, Psychiatry, and Neuroscience ranked 3rd in UK;

Modern Languages and Linguistics ranked 3rd in UK;

Philosophy ranked 4th in the UK.

All subject areas have active links with research organizations outwith the University, and a broad network of collaboration with a range of universities around the globe. The School offers extensive support for academics, including dedicated undergraduate and postgraduate teaching offices, research and knowledge exchange support team and IT resources team.

The School facilities include a range of specialist laboratories and a well-stocked and resourced School library which is supported by a full-time librarian. This is in addition to the nearby University central library. The School is located across two buildings set in the heart of the University's George Square campus.

The School is unique in offering outstanding opportunities for interdisciplinary teaching and in pioneering novel forms of research that reach across traditional boundaries.

The School has well established links with other areas of the University such Clinical Neuroscience, Medicine, Informatics and Edinburgh College of Art.
This large and diverse teaching portfolio is augmented by the breadth of our research portfolio, whereby we are able to secure large volumes and value of externally funded research grants. Our core income budget is circa £30m per annum.

In 2020/21, the School welcomed nearly 2500 undergraduate and postgraduate students from around the world onto our diverse range of programmes.

There are over 160 academic staff within the School, and the breadth of expertise ranges from analytic philosophy and the study of English language, through theoretical and applied linguistics, philosophy of science and epistemology and experimental psychology, to cognitive neurosciences and genetic influences on human behaviour.

Alongside this, we have several research centres which further drive our research and help put our research into practice, connecting academia with industry, policy and the general public, for example;

- Alzheimer Scotland Dementia Research Centre – dementia research centre in collaboration with Alzheimer Scotland.

- Angus McIntosh Centre for Historical Linguistics – research centre focused on historical linguistics and language change, centred on the history of English and Scots.

- Bilingualism Matters – a centre promoting bilingualism and language learning to the general public.

- The Centre for Language Evolution – interdisciplinary centre focused on understanding the origins and evolution of language.

- EIDYN – Philosophy research centre focusing on epistemology, mind and normativity.

- The Edinburgh Centre for Data, Culture & Society - provides our community of practice with space for experimentation, innovation and skills development, and gives tailored support to research groups and projects.

The School offers extensive professional service support for academics across a wider range of administrative operations, including:

- Dedicated undergraduate and postgraduate teaching offices.

- Research and knowledge exchange support team.

- A highly skilled and specialised IT team who provide support relating to learning technology, and extensive support and facilities for data collection and experimentation across cognitive science.

Who's Who
in the Department of Psychology

Professor Sarah MacPherson
Head of Psychology

Prof MacPherson joined the Psychology department in 2006 following a post-doc at University College London. She was promoted to Senior Lecturer in 2014 and then Personal Chair of Cognitive Neuropsychology in 2023.
She took up the role of Head of Psychology in summer 2021.
Her research focuses on the understanding and assessment of frontal lobe functions, including executive functions, social cognition and memory, through the study of patients with focal frontal lobe lesions and dementia, as well as healthy adult aging. She currently contributes to both undergraduate and postgraduate teaching.

Dr Jasna Martinovic
Director of Teaching

Dr Martinovic is a senior lecturer in Psychology. She joined the department in 2020 after 11 years as lecturer and senior lecturer at the University of Aberdeen.
Her research uses psychophysical and electroencephalographic methods to investigate the neural mechanisms that enable synergistic processing of luminance and chromatic information. Such processing occurs in perception, attention and cognition and is essential for how we perceive and think about our visual environment.
She teaches perception and cognitive neuroscience across UG & PG programmes.

Professor Michelle Luciano
Director of Research

Prof Luciano joined the Psychology department in 2007 as a post-doc working on cognitive ageing. She began a lectureship in 2012, was promoted to Reader in 2018, then Personal Chair of Behavioural Genetics in 2023.

Her research focuses on understanding the genetic and environmental influences on cognitive abilities and personality across the lifespan with a particular interest in neurodevelopment in childhood and ageing in adults.

She currently contributes to both undergraduate and postgraduate teaching.

Who's Who
in The School of PPLS

Professor Holly Branigan
Head of School

Prof Branigan joined the Psychology department at the University in 1999 after a BA in Language and Linguistic Science (York), an MSc and PhD in Cognitive Science (Edinburgh), and a British Academy Fellowship (Glasgow/Edinburgh).

She has held a Personal Chair in Psychology of Language and Cognition since 2011. Her main areas of interest are language production and dialogue in monolingual and bilingual adults. More recently, she has also begun to carry out related research with typically and atypically developing children.

Prof Branigan was made Interim Head of School in August 2017 and permanently took up the role in 2019.

Prof Bettelou Los
Deputy Head of School

Professor Los joined the University in 2013 as Forbes Chair of English Language.
Her main research interests are historical linguistics, the history of English, diachronic syntax and the interaction of syntax with information structure.

She was Head of Subject Area Linguistics and English Language from 2014–2017 and became Deputy Head of School from July 2021.

Margarida Teixeria-Dias
Director of Professional Services

Director of Professional Services Margarida Teixeira Dias joined the School of PPLS from the College of Science and Engineering in July 2021 and has worked in higher education for 7 years. As Director of Professional Services, Margarida leads the organisation, planning and management of the comprehensive range support services within the School, and works closely with senior academic managers to support School planning, strategy and financial management.
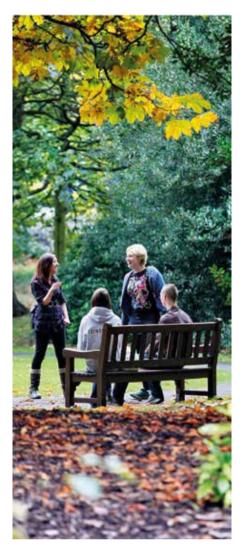

The University

For more than four centuries, our people and their achievements have rewritten history time and again. They've explored space, revolutionised surgery, published era-defining books, paved the way for life-saving medical breakthroughs and introduced to the world many inventions, discoveries and ideas from penicillin to Dolly the sheep. We have believed that anything is possible, we still do.

The latest Research Excellence Framework highlighted our place at the forefront of international research. This adds to our international reputation for the quality of our teaching and our student experience excellence. The University is proud of its success with online teaching initiatives, with 2550 students currently studying its online distance learning postgraduate programmes, and a total to date of more than 2 million enrolments for Edinburgh Massive Open Online Courses (MOOCs).

As a member of staff, you will be part of one of the world's leading universities, with 20 Schools spread over 3 Colleges that offer more than 1600 undergraduate and 600 postgraduate programmes to over 35,000 students each year. Professional services are critical to this success as well as our world-class teaching, research and student facilities. In fact, we are one of the top employers in Edinburgh, with over 13,000 people spread across a wide range of academic and supporting roles.

As a world-changing, world-leading university, we offer an exciting, positive, creative, challenging and rewarding place to work.

We give you support, nurture your talent, develop and reward success and integrate academic, professional and personal career goals, as well as give your career the benefit of a great and distinguished reputation.

Pay, Benefits and Conditions

In addition to a competitive salary, our employees benefit from a competitive reward package and a wide range of staff benefits, which include:

- generous annual leave allowance.
- defined benefits pension scheme which offers a guaranteed retirement income based on your salary. The University currently pays a monthly contribution equal to 19.5% of your salary, while you pay 8.8%.
- staff discounts on a range of services.
- on-campus nurseries.
- The University also offers a generous suite of policies around family leave. Examples of our policies can be viewed here.

Access our staff benefits page for further information and use our reward calculator to find out the total value of pay and benefits provided.

Relocation

Edinburgh is one of the most diverse Universities in the UK, with staff and students from over 160 countries. Our International Staff website has been created to assist you, and your family, with settling into life in Edinburgh.

Relocation Polices

Relocation support can be provided to both domestic and international appointees in line with the University relocation policy. The University is also able to provide support to partners of new appointees wishing to transition career (more information can be found here)

International Relocation Support

Once you have a job offer from the University, you may need to apply for a visa to work in the UK. If you are applying for a highly skilled role or are a sponsored researcher the University may be able to sponsor you through through a skilled worker (formally tier 2)visa route, or help you in applying for an exceptional talent (formally tier 1) visa.

An overview of the visa processes can be found here.

The University currently has a dedicated International Staff Advisor, who is able to assist with each stage of any visa process, both before and after arriving in the UK.

Along with PPLS HR, they will be able to assist with the following areas:

- Initial advice with relation to suitable visa routes
- Free and impartial specialist advice on UK immigration matters for prospective and current staff, visitors and their accompanying dependants
- Advice on how to complete the applications required
- Guidance on the UK immigration rules and regulations
- Support in relation to understanding of university policy with relation to visa fees and reimbursement
- Further advice and guidance when dealing with Indefinite Leave to Remain

Immigration Fees

There are two types of support currently in place, the Interest Free Loan and Visa Fee Reimbursement.

The University offers assistance for fees you incur in relation to your Skilled Worker, Exceptional Talent or UK Residency applications and associated UK legal fees. In respect of Skilled worker and Exceptional Talent this includes payments for immigration healthcare surcharge fees (NHS) and National Academic Recognition Information Centre (NARIC) fees. PPLS HR will advise on this process in full at the time of offer.
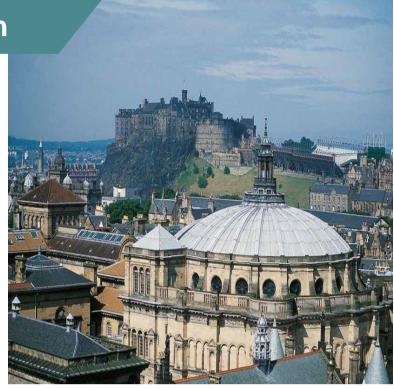

The City of Edinburgh

Edinburgh is a beautiful city that has something to offer everyone. Whether you prefer a quiet restaurant, a lively night out or something in between, you are bound to find it in Edinburgh. Regularly ranked as one of the "Best Places to Live in the UK", Edinburgh has many strings to its bow.

Culture and Entertainment

Home to the largest arts festival in the world, The Edinburgh International Festival brings the month of August alive in the city where residents are spoilt with first class theatre, music, performance art and comedy all on their doorstep.
The abundance of galleries and museums such as The Museum of Scotland, Scottish National Gallery and Scottish National Portrait Gallery to name but a few, means that there is always opportunity to soak up some culture all year round.

For those who wish to feed their bellies as well as their minds, Edinburgh boasts the highest number of Michelin starred restaurants in the Scotland, and has more restaurants per head of population than any other UK city outside of London.

The historic appeal of the Athens of the North has led it to become renowned for its monuments and attractions including the Scott Monument, National Monument on Calton Hill and of course the Edinburgh Castle itself; which dominates the city skyline, no more so than on Hogmanay with the world's biggest street party and fireworks extravaganza to match!

Transport and Districts

Air Links - Several airlines fly to the Edinburgh from the principal European cities, and there are very frequent services from London. If booked well in advance, travel to Edinburgh by air can be cheap, particularly from London. For more information check the Edinburgh Airport website. Bus and tram connections operate 24/7 and with an average journey time of 25-30mins form the city centre.

Rail Links - Travelling to Edinburgh from other parts of the UK is generally easy by train and both Waverly and Haymarket train stations are centrally located, with support routes provided by the bus and tram networks.

Transport Around Edinburgh – Edinburgh has an excellent level of public transport provision compared to many cities in the UK. We have our own Transport and Parking Department here in the University of Edinburgh. They provide lots of advice on getting around the city plus details on staff parking facilities on campus.

Edinburgh Districts

Edinburgh is a highly sought after place to live. Its beautiful city centre covers the Georgian splendour of the New Town, with its grand terraces, crescents, gardens, and upmarket shopping boutiques and bars, and the narrow closes, winding stairways, and historic charms of the Old Town. Nearby communities such as Morningside, Bruntsfield, Stockbridge and Newington remain in easy reach of the city centre as well provide a local community feel.

Explore all of Edinburgh's distracts on our website .

Nurseries and Schools

Based at King's Buildings, The University's Arcadia Nursery, designed around the concept of 'free play' by award winning architect Malcolm Fraser, provides the perfect environment for children to blossom.

There is however, no obligation to place your child in University's nursery. There are many other childcare options in Edinburgh. The Edinburgh council website provides information about childcare across the City.

There are two main types of school in the UK, state and independent schools. State Schools make up the majority of schools and are funded by the government. There is no fee for your children to attend these schools. Independent schools require a fee for your child to study there, although there are bursaries available. The school your child can attend is usually dictated by the area in which you live. You cannot apply for a school place until you have an address in the area (this is not the case for fee paying/ independent schools). The council has 'catchment areas' for each school and have a duty to provide schooling for your child, but if your first choice school has no places left, they may have to recommend a school further away. As Edinburgh is our capital city, many of the schools fill up quickly. Some families consider living a commutable distance from the city in order to have a larger choice of schools. East Lothian and West Lothian Councils cover school areas a commutable distance from Edinburgh
