

RIGEN Blogs – Information for Authors

The Race and Inclusivity in Global Education Network \(RIGEN\) brings together members with an interest in race, cultural inclusivity, internationalisation, and decoloniality in education. Our research spans national and international as well as formal and informal educational contexts, and our members' work ranges from the early years to higher education.

The RIGEN blogs are intended to raise issues relating to promoting race equality, inclusivity, and anti-racism within education in general. Blogs may present issues arising from research or may be a commentary that an individual with a commitment to race, anti-racism and inclusivity in education may wish to offer. Contributions can discuss examples of improving practice or raise discussions about conundrums or discomforts. The aim of the blogs is to open up discussion, and to provide spaces for disruption and transformation. The blogs are aimed primarily at engaging with the issues, rather than reporting solely on research or practice. As our audience is much wider than academia, the blogs are intended to be written and presented in a way that is accessible to a wide range of readers.

Contribute to RIGEN Blogs

If you feel you would like to contribute, please see the information below. We are very happy to take contributions from Scotland and across the world.

Blogs should include:

- 800-1000 words submitted on a Word document.
- Appropriate credits and permissions for any images/videos used.
- A short bio of who you are with good quality head shot photo.
- A link to your professional profile or an email address for readers to contact you, if you wish to include this.
- Any Twitter or Instagram handles and hashtags you would like to add when we promote it.

We encourage you to write to us with your idea for a blog before submission. Please contact Rowena.Arshad@ed.ac.uk and Jite.Eferakorho@ed.ac.uk, copying in RIGEN@ed.ac.uk, and mark your email with 'Blog submission'.