

NEW COLLEGE'S EDI GUIDE: USEFUL CONTACTS AND RESOURCES

LGBTQ+

If you experience a hate crime, Stonewall Scotland provides a hate crime reporting guide here.

New College Pride can be contacted at ncpride@ed.ac.uk with any queries or concerns, and to be added to their mailing list.

The Scottish Trans Network maintains a great list of contact points for LGBTQ+ issues which can be found here.

The Staff Pride Network – PhD students are welcome to join, and they offer monthly Rainbow Office Hours which they say “provides a chance for staff and PhD students to make a connection with an LGBT+ staff member, PhD student or LGBT+ Ally at the University”.

RELIGION

Stop Hate UK provides useful resources on religious hate crime and reporting hate crime.

DISABILITY

The Student Disability Service at the University can be accessed here.

Disability Information Scotland has a range of guides on topics related to disability, with ways in which to access support. They can also be reached on their hotline, 0300 323 9961, Monday-Friday, 10-4pm

CLASS

The Office for Diversity, Equity and Community Engagement has compiled a useful set of resources on social class, with a focus on American social class.

RACE

Stop Hate UK and Show Racism the Red Card provide resources on racism in the UK and information on how to report hate crime.

MENTAL HEALTH

Breathing Space is a free and confidential phone line for anybody experiencing low mood or depression in Scotland. The helpline number is 0800 83 85 87, Weekdays: Monday-Thursday 6pm to 2am, Weekend: Friday 6pm-Monday 6am.

Samaritans is a confidential listening service which can be accessed 24/7 on 116 123 or on email jo@samaritans.org

The University maintain a list of internal contacts which can be accessed here if you need support. The student counselling service can be accessed here.

If you need urgent support, please call NHS 111 or 999.

