

Bibliography and Further Reading

The most detailed history of the development of teacher training in Scotland to the end of the 1960s is that written by Marjorie Cruickshank:

Cruickshank, Marjorie (1970): History of the Training of Teachers in Scotland, University of London Press, London

Wilson Bain, lecturer at Moray House, has written a comprehensive synopsis of the early history of Moray House:

Bain, Wilson H (1985): The Historical Perspective, in Kirk, Gordon (Ed) Moray House and Professional Education, Scottish Academic Press

A biography of Maurice Paterson, Rector, was published in 1921:

Gunn, J (1921): Maurice Paterson: Rector of Moray House, Thomas Nelson (published for the Moray House Club)

Background information from the following publications has also proved invaluable:

Morgan, Alexander (1927): Rise and Progress of Scottish Education, Oliver & Boyd, Edinburgh

Marker, Willis (1994): The Spider's Web? Policy-making in Teacher Education in Scotland 1959 – 81, University of Strathclyde

Kirk, Gordon (1995): The Changing Context of Higher Education in Scotland, in Kirk, Gordon (Ed) Moray House and Change in Higher Education, Scottish Academic Press

Other documents have also been drawn on which are housed in the Moray House Archive, part of the University's Special Collections.

*Hugh Perfect
Honorary Archivist
Moray House Archive
University of Edinburgh*

November 2005